VOL. VII, NO. 358.

HONOLULU, HAWAII TERRITORY, SUNDAY, NOVEMBER 7, 1909.—TWENTY-FOUR PAGES.

Entered Jan. 19, 1908, at Honolulu, Hawaii, as Second Class Matter, Under Act of Congress of March 3, 1879.

LEGISLATURE CONCLUDES ITS LABORS AND STANDS ADJOURNED WITHOUT DAY

House Passes Resolution for Better Steamship Accommodation, Which Senate Debates and Refuses to Concur In.

The legislature of the Territory of Hawaii concluded its work yesterday and adjourned sine die about two-thirty o'clock, after having accomplished all that it was called together for. The administration bill for the amendment of the Organic Act had been approved with but slight amendment, and the legislature as a whole had exhibited the good sense not to attempt any general legislation not directly connected with the purposes for which it was called together.

The concluding exercises in each house were brief and of no great formality. President Smith of the senate and Speaker Holstein of the house made valedictory addresses, congratulating the two houses on the good work they had done and the expedition with which the work before them had been finished; the chaplains delivered final prayers; in the house "Hawaii Pono!" was sung by the members with the solemnity that attends only the concluding minutes of a session of the legislature; the gavel fell for the last time, and the special session was ended.

The house of representatives in the morning put itself on record as being for the best interests of the people as against those of the corporations, but the senate failed to make as good a record. The resolution introduced in the house by Cohen, for the temporary suspension of the coastwise shipping laws, and adopted by the lower body by a strong vote, was killed in the upper house, chiefly through the efforts of President Smith, acting on the floor as the representative of the corporations.

A Merited Rebuke.

A very smooth trick of the senate was foiled in the house when that body tumbled to what the senate was trying to do—and it took only about two seconds for the house to get wise. Friday a concurrent resolution was introduced in the senate by the fearful Collobo authorizing the land commissioner and the Governor to give title to the lands at Lahaina which have been occupied by private individuals since the time of the Great Mahalo. The resolution may or may not have been all right. At any rate, the senate adopted it, but, evidently fearing that the house would kill it, held it back until within five minutes of the time set for the house to adjourn. Then the resolution came down from the senate for the house to act upon. Speaker Holstein called attention to the tricky tactics of the upper house, and the representatives promptly turned it down.

In the house during the morning, Cohen delivered the strongest speech of the session, in support of the coastwise suspension resolution, and succeeded in winning out over the rattle-brained tactics of the representative from Hilo, who made a few florid addresses in his usual manner.

Good Work Done.

All in all, the work of the legislature was good, and justified the confidence reposed in that body when it was called together to set on the proposed bill for the amendment of the Organic Act. The bill as proposed has been approved with but few amendments. The legislators, it is true, changed it to recommend that they themselves be given $1000 a session, but that can be excused if everything else goes through. And if they can get the thousand, all right; they're lucky.

THE HOUSE.

When the routine business of the house had been concluded yesterday morning, Cohen, under the order of resolutions, introduced the following resolution, which precipitated the most lively fight of the special session:

"Whereas, On account of the lack of adequate passenger accommodations between Honolulu and the mainland, large numbers of tourists are prevented from visiting Hawaii; and

"Whereas, The advancement and development of this Territory are being retarded because of the fact that many possible settlers are unable to get steamship accommodations from San Francisco and other coast ports to Hawaii; and

"Whereas, It frequently happens that visitors who have come to the Islands have, through inability to get passage back, been prevented from leaving when they desired to do so, and have, on that account, made reports to their friends and acquaintances which have prevented others from visiting Hawaii; and

"Whereas, Great discomfort and inconvenience are experienced, not only

THE SENATE.

House concurrent resolution No. 4, in favor of suspension of the coastwise law, came up in the senate through a communication from the house.

Knudsen moved that the resolution be adopted, McCarthy that it be laid on the table.

President Smith called Vice President Kalama to the chair and took the floor, saying he opposed the resolution. McCarthy withdrew his motion which was not debatable to put Smith in order. The President referred to the policy of subsidizing American shipping which was being promoted as the best means of restoring the American merchant marine. This resolution made no mention of subsidy. Besides it was loosely drawn. He believed that relief for the passenger situation would come from ourselves. There were large steamers enough, receiving freight from our merchants, to handle the passenger traffic if their owners would only tackle the problem.

Chillingworth spoke of the resolution as having been brought in when the corpse of the dead legislature was in its shroud. For the whole year last past there had been a fight among members of the chamber of commerce and the merchants' association on this question. There was nothing like the proposition to be found in any other country in God's world. He agreed with the president that the question could be settled by our own merchants here. Our merchants were looking for cheapest freight rates and forgetting their duties as American citizens. For them to support this proposition when there were steamships lying up in San Francisco rotting was unthinkable.

On a show of hands the resolution was laid on the table by a vote of twelve to one.

The End.

Chillingworth, McCarthy and Baker were appointed as a committee to notify the Governor and the house that the senate had completed its business and was ready to adjourn.

Chillingworth reported duty performed by the committee to wait on the Governor and the house.

Bonquets Exchanged.

McCarthy moved a vote of thanks to the president for the able manner in which he had presided.

President Smith in reply said: "I thank you, gentlemen. You are to be congratulated and I think the country is to be congratulated. There has been a little difference of opinion, but nothing very reprehensible has occurred. We have finished our work and I think we have been animated by a purpose to do the best for the interests of the country. I hope we will not have another special session between now and the regular session."

"What about the $200?" Woods inquired, causing a laugh.

Representative Kalelopu, at the head of a committee of five, came in and informed the president in subdued tones that the house was ready to adjourn.

Chaplain Aiea at the request of the president offered a prayer—short, yet longer than any of his five opening invocations.

On motion of McCarthy, seconded by Quinn, the senate adjourned sine die, the presidential gavel falling at two-forty.

NEVER KNEW HE HIT NEIGHBOR IN THE ARM

Chinaman Plunks a Bullet Through Arm of Native Woman.

"Just practising," was the reason Shue Hong gave the police last night as an excuse for shooting in the arm a Hawaiian woman married to a Portuguese named Covello.

The Chinaman's little practise stirred up the district Waikiki of the carline across the marsh, and a hurry call for the police was sent in. During all the excitement, Shue Hong was innocently unaware of any pilikia. He had received the gun from a friend who went to China, and states that it was the first time he had ever handled one.

When the police arrived on the scene they arrested four Chinese who were in the house where the shooting occurred, but missed the man who says he is the offender and who was at the time in the adjoining house.

That genial A. P. man in San Francisco forgot all about the big Stanford-Berkeley game yesterday and did not come through with any result. It is probable that a private cable will be received today, in which case the result will be published in tomorrow's paper.

LADIES' NIGHT BIG SUCCESS

Commercial Club Entertains Fair
Sex for First Time and Finds It Pleasing.

"Ladies' Night" is something which will probably become a very popular institution among Commercial Club members, the first one, last night. From seven last evening until after eleven the club rooms were filled with the fair relatives and friends of the members, the rooms being very prettily decorated for the occasion.

One of the dinners for which the club is celebrated was served, after which a splendid program was rendered. The welcome of the club to the ladies was given by Fred W. Macfarlane, who, in a witty speech, referred to the fact that the occasion was a novelty but one appreciated by the members. After the applause had died down, Mr. Macfarlane turned the management of the evening over to R. Buchly, the chairman of the club's entertainment committee. The program for the evening, under Mr. Buchly's able management, was a most enjoyable one. The first number was a violin solo by Master Willard Ables, who, for his age, shows a wonderful mastery of that difficult instrument.

Miss Helen Wood Lathrop's solos proved to be one of the treats of the evening. Miss Lathrop possesses a clear bell-like voice which showed to advantage, particularly in her second number, which was Chaminade's "Summer."

Another of the younger generation on the program was Master Ezra Crane. This little chap sang George Cohan's latest military march song, "The Grand Old Rag," and did it remarkably well for George Cohan's music is the most difficult of present day popular music to master.

Evelyn Niles Gee was the real professional of the evening. To watch her work it would be impossible to tell that she had not made it her profession to "tread the boards." She first did a monologue which was a clever take-off on the feminine habit of letting the telephone mania run away with them. Later on the program she appeared with her husband, Edwin Stanton Gee, in a one act comedy skit called "A Pair of Lunatics." The work of the Gees in this showed them not only to be well able to handle comedy but the heavier work as well for each of them gave a short reading from Shakespeare that was capitally done.

Miss Ruth Farrington recited Eugene Field's "Little Orphan Annie," and brought down the house. This little lady not only uses her voice remarkably well but is gifted with a most expressive face.

Mr. Buchly was down on the program for two violin solos and his work is so well known that his hearers settled themselves with sighs of enjoyment to listen and insisted on a repetition of the second number which was graciously rendered.

H. F. Wichman was in excellent voice and sang two solos "Come Back" by Reeds Miller, and "Ho! Fill Me a Flagon," the little Nevin gem that never fails to bring forth an encore.

Three accompanists presided at the piano during the program, Mrs. L. Tenney Peck, Mrs. Brainerd H. Smith and Miss Pearl Littlejohn. Theirs was the most difficult task of the evening for the soloists' work can be made or marred by the accompanist, and three ladies should be given full credit for their work.

DRINK HEALTH OF THE EMPEROR

Japanese Merchants' Association
Hosts at Birthday Banquet at Mochizuki Club.

In honor of the birthday of His Imperial Majesty the Emperor of Japan, the Japanese Merchants' Association entertained last evening at the Mochizuki Club, Waikiki, the occasion being a cementing of the friendly ties existing between the Japanese and the foreign elements in business, official and social life. The principal officers of the territorial and federal government were present, as well as representatives of foreign governments and the larger business houses. The entertainment provided by the hosts was unique and afforded an evening of pleasure to the audience.

The guests were received by officers of the association, and shortly after eight o'clock were conducted to the banquet hall, where a buffet lunch of Japanese and foreign edibles was served. The guests when grouped about the laden board remained at attention while a Japanese orchestra played the Japanese national anthem, following which Consul-General Uyeno offered a toast to the Emperor of Japan, which was drunk in silence. The orchestra then played "America," and another toast was offered by the Consul-General for the President of the United States, which was drunk also in silence. During the dinner President Yokokura of the association read an address of welcome, which was interpreted into English by Secretary Takakuwa. The president said:

"We, the members of the Japanese Merchants' Association, who have in-

OFFICERS HERE TO OPEN HOME

Salvation Army Sends Two of Its Leaders Here on an Important Work.

Mrs. Commissioner Estill and her assistant, Mrs. Colonel French, were arriving passengers on the Alameda yesterday. Mrs. Estill is one of the most valuable officers of the Salvation Army, being entirely in charge of all of the rescue work of that organization west of Chicago. She is here to have a look at the work being carried on in the Islands and to be present at the opening of the new rescue home in Manoa Valley.

This morning, at the regular service at the Methodist church, Mrs. Estill will tell of the methods used in their work, and this evening, at the Central Union church, at seven o'clock, she will speak on "The Slum and Rescue Work of the Salvation Army." Mrs. Colonel French will talk this evening on the same subject at the Salvation Army hall. Both of these ladies will be at the opening of the Manoa Valley home on Tuesday afternoon, from three until five-thirty o'clock.

The local branch of the army has just completed a large and comfortable building of which they are justly proud, and this will be dedicated to the cause on Tuesday afternoon. At the start, the army determined to complete this home on the amount donated without calling for further assistance. Up to the finishing of the building they have been able to do this, but now they are facing the water problem, which, for them, is going to be an expensive one. They had thought to have connected with the city water pipes for their supply, but upon the recommendation of the architect they have decided to build sheds and tanks of their own, for the reason that the size pipe which would have to be used to give them a city water supply would be such that at any time during a shortage of water they might be left with absolutely no supply.

For the putting in of the sheds and tanks for water and for the grading of the grounds surrounding the new home, they are going to require an additional two thousand dollars, and it is hoped that two or three charitably inclined persons will give their checks for the amount needed.

The call from the children for some chickens and a cow is meeting with ready response, and already several of the feathered fowl have been delivered at the home. The Advertiser is in receipt of two donations as a starter for the "Cow and Chicken Fund," one of fifteen dollars, from Mrs. Luella Emmons, and one of ten dollars, from Capt. J. C. Castner. The business office of The Advertiser will receive and turn over to the home any other amounts that anyone may wish to send in, and the receipt of these will be acknowledged in these columns.

CHESTER TURNS DR. COOK DOWN

Scientist Declares Data Filed
Does Not Prove That Cook
Reached the Pole.

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, November 7.—Admiral Colby M. Chester, member of the National Geographic Society, issued a statement yesterday to the effect that the data submitted so far by Dr. Frederick Cook fails to prove his claim that he had reached the North Pole.

Admiral Chester is well fitted by training to pass upon the explorer's claims, being a scientist as well as a naval officer with a long and distinguished record. His reputation as a scientist was sufficient to secure his appointment as superintendent of the naval observatory in 1901, while in 1905 he was in command of the special service squadron to observe the eclipse of the sun.

SMUGGLERS SINK HONDURAS NAVY

(United Press.)

NEW ORLEANS, November 5.—The gunboat Tatumbla, comprising the entire navy of the government of Honduras, has been sunk near Port Cortez. She was engaged in pursuing a band of smugglers who have for a long time defied the Honduran officers. Coming upon the smugglers in force, the crew of the Tatumbla were soon engaged in a desperate fight with the outlaws who finally overcame the Honduran navy and scuttled the lone man-of-war, leaving her to sink.
